

Employer Tax Credits Eligibility Form

Employer Instructions:

- To determine whether or not you're eligible for the Work Opportunity Tax Credit, have your new employee complete this Employee Eligibility Form and return it to you.
- Tell the employee that completion of the form is voluntary and that their answers will be used only to obtain tax credits for the company.
- Explain that the Federal government gives tax credits to businesses who hire people in certain categories that have a harder time gaining employment and that tax credits can help your company financially.
- After your new employee returns the completed form, go to <https://www.intuitemployertaxcredits.com/TC600> and complete the Online Eligibility Form. This form will help us determine if you're eligible and estimate your tax credit.

Employee Instructions:

Answer the Questions Below

- The reason your employer is asking you to complete this form is to determine if they're eligible to receive a Federal Income Tax credit for hiring you.
- The Federal government gives income tax credit (through a program called Work Opportunity Tax Credits) to businesses who hire people in certain categories that have a harder time gaining employment.
- This form is voluntary, but completing it can help your company financially.

Return to Your Employer

- After completing the form, return it to your employer.
- Your employer may ask you for copies of certain documents (such as a copy of your benefits history for welfare or a copy of your discharge papers if you're a veteran). If asked, please provide your employer with the requested copies.
- Later, your employer may also ask you to sign the application for tax credit.
